Walk Through Fire

COUNTRY · OUTLAW · AMERICANA
RELEASED JUNE 19, 2026 · TEN TRACKS · 45:36

THE ARTIST

Blake Wilder writes country and Americana pulled straight from real life — family, resilience, love, regret, and the everyday fires we all walk through.

Born in Wisconsin and raised in Nashville from age twelve, he picked up a guitar around the time he arrived and never put it down. Most of these songs were written in the margins of a demanding career and a full family life, carried for decades, and never released until they meant something true. He writes now from the South Carolina Lowcountry.

Blake Wilder is a pen name — a way to let the music stand on its own. The emotions are real. The stories are real.

I didn't write these songs last year. I've been carrying them for most of my adult life. They weren't ready — or maybe I wasn't ready — until now.

STORY ANGLES

THIRTY YEARS IN THE MARGINS

Most artists race to release a first album. These songs were written across a career and a family and held back until they meant something.

THREE HOMETOWNS

Born in Wisconsin. Raised in Nashville from age twelve through high school, where his parents still live. Writing now from the Lowcountry.

TRANSPARENT ABOUT AI

Plenty of artists use these tools quietly. Wilder states on his own site exactly what the tools did and what he did.

All songs written by Blake Wilder. Original demos — guitar, bass, drums, keys, harmonica — recorded by him, then produced into the finished album using ACE Studio, including AI-generated lead vocals. The full account is on his site, in his own words, at blakewilder.music/about.
